TWO INSTITUTIONS NO LONGER UNITED

Divorce Granted to Washington and Tusculum Colleges in Tennessee.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Bristol, Va., November 30.—The Supreme Court of Tennessee has affirmed the opinion of Chancellor Haynes, of Bristol, granting a divorce in the case of Washington and Tusculum Colleges, historic Presbyterian schools of East Tennessee, which entered into a merger agreement four years ago.

The court held that the two institutions had no authority under their respective charters to enter into union, and that, further, the terms of the law providing for such a union were not complied with.

The decree divides an endowment fund of $100,000 contributed by Andrew Carnegie, the late Dr. Pearson, of Chicago, and Mrs. McCormick, of Chicago, widow of the reaper king, and others. Of this fund the Washington school gets $61,000, and Tusculum the remainder.

Mrs. McCormick has given more than $100,000 to these schools.

Two Youths Were Playing With Pistol Which They Thought Was Not Loaded.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Fredericksburg, Va., November 30.—Ralph Concklin, aged eleven years, son of Mrs. C. B. Concklin and a grandson of Mrs. S. B. Pendleton, of Spotsylvania County, was accidentally shot and killed on Thanksgiving Day by his older brother, Lawrence, while the two youths were playing with a pistol, which they thought was not loaded. The fatal accident occurred at the home of Lawrence Concklin, in Loudoun County.

A number of people in this section have been hunting this week, but they met with poor success. Game being exceedingly scarce. In fact, the game is so hard to find that many of the sportsmen have given up the search for it. Game is so scarce that it is believed that the Board of Supervisors of the various counties of this section will shorten the open season as a protection to what little game is left.

T. Jefferson Mason, son of the late Judge John E. Mason and Mrs. Kate E. Mason, of this city, who is past in the United States Supreme Court of Washington, is at his home here on a month's sick leave.

Donation Day at the Mary Washington Hospital here was a decided success. Thanksgiving offerings were generous, the cash received from individuals being $104, and from church collections on Thanksgiving $63.41, making an aggregating of $167.41. A number of contributions of articles were also received.

Investigation into Election Situation Without Definite Results.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Bristol, Va., November 30.—Although both Judge H. A. W. Skeen, of the Circuit Court for the counties of Wise, Lee and Dickenson, and the Pure Election Society of the Ninth Virginia District are very anxious to find evidence that will reveal who was responsible for the mailing of money in envelopes to influence the congressional election on November 5, the examination of more than 200 witnesses by a special grand jury at Wise Courthouse failed to reveal anything of a positive nature.

Judge Skeen declared that there was no doubt that the election laws were violated, and the jury found very suspicious circumstances, but her dame of honor and sister, Mrs. Cornelius Van Leuven, and was preceded to the altar by two pretty little flower girls, Misses Lillian Emerson and Little Van Leuven.
